
THE WRITE PAGES.COM

[DATE]

Re: Removal from Mailing List

[COMPANY NAME]

[ADDRESS]

To Whom it May Concern:

As my mailbox has become inundated and overwhelmed, I have begun automatically shredding the contents of all offers and solicitations, including yours. I and my pet laboratory rats sincerely wish to thank you for the free small animal bedding and litter. Since we assume you would rather not supply us with such, we deduce you would prefer not to waste time, money and paper sending us unsolicited requests for donations. Consequently, you may wish to remove us from your mailing list. You have our permission to immediately do so.

Otherwise, we thank you in advance for the continued supply of shredded paper bedding (the rats really love to arrange it into small, cozy nests!) Because of the endless supply of nonprofit-generated paper, I haven't had to purchase small animal bedding in months. PetsMart will get my money before you do, though.

Most sincerely,

Kathleen Galayda

Tweek, Butters, & Pudlow (the lab rats)

P.S. You may consider it a sad day when rats are less wasteful, greedy, beleaguering and obnoxious than people (but there it is). However, those of us who know and love them aren't a bit surprised.